Kawazu-cho is situated on the southern east coast of the Izu Peninsular. It takes nearly 2 and half hours to go there from Tokyo on an express train.

It will be in full bloom through the approximately one month beginning to bloom from early February every year taking advantage of the features of the mild climate and the early flowering of Izu.

Kawazu-zakura is characterized by its earlier and longer blossom as well as deeper pink than those of ordinary someiyoshino.

The Kawazu-zakura festival is usually held for one month from the beginning of February to the beginning of March.

Along the banks of the Kawazu river are cherry trees more than 2km. in length.
